TERRACING SCHOOL IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Other Schools Planned By County Agent For Morgan County

A very successful terracing school is in progress on the A. G. Wilhite farm west of Walkville, J. C. Ford, county farm agent, announced today. Another is planned for Thursday and Friday of this week on the farm of R. D. Chunn near Valhermon Springs.

Beginning next Monday a three-days school will be conducted on the W. E. Steed farm near Trinity, on the Trinity-Decatur road; and Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week we expect to put on a school at Danville on Charlie Hardwick's farm," he said.

"Those who attend these schools are requested to stay through the entire course and become efficient in terracing, and qualify for certificates in terracing. The Bostrom-Brady Manufacturing Company of Atlanta, makers of farm levels, are offering a level as a prize to the school that makes the best record. Only those who stay for the full course will count in winning this level, and it will become the property of those who win it."

To Separate Sexes At Howard College

(Associated Press)
ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 13.—Howard College, Baptist denominational institution, will separate men and women students in a co-ordinated college by action taken today by the Alabama Baptist convention here.

Two separate institutions will be maintained on the same campus, with the same faculty for both, under the plans which are to be carried out within five years.

The convention acted favorably upon the report of the Alabama Baptist educational commission, which urged separation of the sexes at Howard, where there are now 555 students in academic departments and 200 in the extension work.

The report was declared one of the most important ever presented to an adopted by Alabama Baptists.

Birmingham was selected as the next place of meeting.

LEASES DINING ROOM

Announcement was made Thursday by L. A. Stubblefield, president that the Hotel Lyons dining room has been leased to John L. Karney, Mr. Karney is well known here and has made many friends for the dining room since taking over the management for the hotel, some months ago. According to the announcement today, henceforth he will be in complete charge of the establishment, which will be operated independently of the hotel.

COTTON GINNING IS STILL ON INCREASE

November Jump Doubles Increase of Last Official Report

Report was made today by county statistician, W. V. Davidson, that 18,023 bales of cotton had been ginned in the county up until November 1st. At the same period last year a comparative statement shows 11,804 bales. This shows the increase in the county for the year to November 1st to be 6,219 bales over the 1923 report.

From the looks of the present crop the demands upon the ginning interests in the county are even greater than they have been for a number of years past. It is truly a period of prosperity and trade expansion for the agriculturists of the county. Ginning over the county is not confined to the cities but goes far into the interior where plants are running on city schedules far into the night to meet the demand of the present crop.

Despite the increase all over the nation in the report of the department of agriculture cotton market prices have continued a steady rise along with the other stocks and oils. It begins to look like the period during the war will not be the greatest that has been in the history of the nation but the year 1924 and 1925 will show even greater as a period of peace and plenty.

CONGRESSMAN HILL ACQUITTED BY JURY

Solon Wins Test Case Brought About By Cider Party

(Associated Press)
BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—Representative John Phillip Hill, of Baltimore, was acquitted by a jury in the United States court today of violating the Volstead law by manufacturing intoxicating wine and cider at his home on West Franklin street.

The fifth and sixth counts of the indictment, which charged Colonel Hill with maintaining a common nuisance at his home were dismissed, under instructions from Judge Morris A. Soper, who presided at the trial.

The trial was the result of a test case forced by Colonel Hill, who maintained the Volstead law gave the farmer the right to manufacture cider and wine but withheld from the city man the right to manufacture beer.

The trial brought from Judge Soper the opinion that the clause of the Volstead act, defining beverages of more than one half of one per cent alcoholic contents as illegal, did not apply to home made wine and cider provided the product is non-intoxicating "in fact."

Officer Accused Of Liquor Possession

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13.—C. M. Rigeins, sergeant of police, was under suspension and bond today following a raid on his home, personally conducted by Chief of Police Fred McDuff, where 15 gallons of liquor were reported discovered.

The Birmingham civil service board will act on the case and the sergeant will answer in the state court on a charge of violation of the prohibition laws.

Chief McDuff acted, he said, upon information reaching him that liquor was being sold by Rigeins at his home. Rigeins was a night desk man at city hall and his record according to his superiors, showed "exceptionally meritorious service."

URGES SPECIAL SESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—An extra session of the new congress soon after next March 4 was urged today by Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, who declared he thought farm and railroad measures, as well as the world court proposal and perhaps tax relief should be taken up at that time.

Farmer Slays His Wife and Himself

(Associated Press)
KINSTON, N. C., Nov. 13.—Raymond Jackson, 35, a farmer living four miles north of Kinston, today shot to death his wife, Mary Casey Jackson, aged 28, as she lay asleep in bed. He then turned the weapon, a shotgun, to his own head and killed himself.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson are survived by four small children, the oldest a boy of nine years.

STOCK PRICES STILL SURGING UPWARD

Trading, However, Is More Moderate Today Than Previously

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Stock prices again surged upward today as trading was resumed at a more moderate pace. Yesterday's realizing movement appeared to have spent itself, except in a few scattered issues, including United States steel. The rise proceeded with renewed vigor, in a variety of rails, oil and specialty shares, sending several issues to new high levels for the year.

United States Cast Iron Pipe, however, fell back two points.

Industrial shares continued to extend their early gains as railroad issues to a large extent were relegated to the background.

Advances were not as sensational as in previous sessions, but the steady flow of public buying orders was reflected in the establishment of more than a dozen 1924 top prices on net gains of one to two and a half points in the first half hour.

These embraced diversified issues.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Cessation of heavy profit taking in today's stock market was followed by another burst of public buying which carried more than two dozen issues to new peak prices for the year.

Trading which started out in rather moderate fashion soon assumed a terrific pace of the last few days

Bad Coughs Ended Quickly by Double-Action Remedy

Remarkable results in quickly clearing up the severest coughs have been obtained with a prescription by a well-known specialist that does two things at once. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it very quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. It is often astonishing how speedily the cough stops. The prescription is known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. It is particularly valuable for night coughing. To promptly and this annoying and weakening ailment, simply before retiring take one teaspoonful of Dr. King's New Discovery and hold it in your throat 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing. Those who have been unable to rest on account of continual coughing have often gotten their full 8 or 9 hours' sleep by this simple method.

Dr. King's is excellent, too, for children's spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis, bronchial asthma, and hoarseness. On sale at all good druggists. Ask for so good that each one calls for more

Ingredients:
1/2 cup sugar (granulated)
1 cup molasses
1/2 cup shortening
3 1/2 cups self-rising flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon ginger

Heat molasses to boiling point. Add soda when removed from fire. Pour hot molasses over shortening. Mix ginger with flour and combine mixtures. This will make a stiff dough which is easily handled if thoroughly chilled before rolling very thin. Cut and bake on greased pans in moderate oven.

NOTE: In making rolled cookies of any kind, it may be necessary to add more flour to make dough stiff enough to handle.

A book of delightful recipes is offered below, send for your free copy

WHO doesn't love old fashioned ginger snaps—those nut-brown cookies with that tang of spice and fresh molasses? Light enough to be healthful, spicy enough to be appetizing, tasteful enough to make you want to eat a whole jarful—how the folks will enjoy them if they're made from good self-rising flour.

It's real fun to make ginger snaps, hurry-up cakes, doughnuts, waffles and dozens of other delicious things if you use self-rising flour. Like plain flour, it comes in a number of different grades and sells at various prices—the grade determining the price you pay. To save you time in cooking and to insure you light, tasteful bakings, pure phosphate baking powder has been added.

Buy self-rising flour that carries the blue symbol of the Soft Wheat Millers' Association. This Blue Shield on a bag of self-rising flour means you are buying pure, healthful, wholesome flour that has the hearty approval of food officials, dieticians and baking experts. If for any reason you are not satisfied with the baking results, your money will be cheerfully refunded.

The plague is said to be under control in and around Hollywood. But are the movies.

WHY WE DRINK MILK

Do people drink milk because they like it or because it is regarded as a healthful food, is the unique inquiry which the federal department of agriculture has set in motion with a view to finding the answer. It will be news to most people that the general consumption of this time-honored food should be explained on the ground that people did not like it but drank it because it is beneficial.

It is desirable that most everybody shall drink a great deal of milk because it is nearly a perfect food, containing not only protein—and protein of a superior value at that—and fat, as do other animal foods, but also carbohydrates, lime, salts and vitamins. Moreover, a study of the human race has revealed that the people who make use of milk are ahead of those who make comparatively little use of it. Dr. E. V. McCollum, physiological chemist of the school of public health and hygiene at Johns Hopkins University, has said that "the people who have used milk and its products liberally are the people who have achieved, who have reduced their infant mortality, who have the best trades in the world, who have an appreciation for art, literature and music, who are progressive in science and in every activity of the human intellect."—Montgomery Times.

THE PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING MESSAGE IS FULL OF EXHALTED SENTIMENT

The Thanksgiving proclamation of this year by President Calvin Coolidge is a brief one and a formal one and there is nothing striking about it, except that it expresses exalted sentiment. The president says that in acknowledging receipt of divine favor in contemplating the blessings that have been bestowed upon us, we shall reveal the spiritual strength of the nation.

In the last paragraph of the message, the president asks "that the people gather in their places of worship, and at family altars, and offer up their thanks for the goodness which has been shown to them in such a multitude of ways. Especially I urge them to supplicate the Throne of Grace that they may gather strength from their tribulations, that they may gain humility from their victories, that they may bear without complaining the burdens that shall be placed upon them, and that they may be increasingly worthy in all ways of the blessings that shall come to them."

The second and third paragraphs of the proclamation are as follows:

"The year has been marked by a continuation of peace whereby our country has entered into a relationship of better understanding with all the other nations of the earth. Ways have been revealed to us by which we could perform very great service through the giving of friendly counsel, through the extension of financial assistance, and through the exercise of a spirit of neighborly kindness to less favored peoples. We should give thanks for the power which has been given into our keeping, with which we have been able to render these services to the rest of mankind.

"At home we have continually had an improving state of the public health. The production of our industries has been large and our harvests have been bountiful. We have been remarkably free from disorder and remarkably successful in of domestic peace. An abundant prosperity has all those pursuits which flourish during a state overspread the land. We shall do well to accept all these favors and bounties with a becoming humility, and dedicate them to the service of the righteous cause of the Giver of all good and perfect gifts. As the Nation has prospered, let all the people show that they are worthy to prosper, by rededicating America to the service of God and man."

THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD BE FURNISHED WITH FULL DATA AS TO RIVER TRANSPORTATION

The request of government engineers for full particulars as to the probable commercial advantage of making the Tennessee river a canal for ships all the way from Knoxville to the Shoals and below them, should be met promptly.

Much more may depend upon the number and kind of replies made to the inquiries of Major Fiske than appears on the surface.

If the business men of the Tennessee Valley make out a good case as to the need of full transportation facilities along the Tennessee river, it is but reasonable to suppose that a lot of government money will be spent upon the project.

But on the other hand if little interest in manifested in the project, little heed will be paid to the data which may be sent to government officials. It must be borne in mind that the mere fact the government has made the recent inquiries as to benefits likely to accrue following the canalization of the river, is not proof positive that such a great work will be undertaken at an early date. It is well to see the dark as well as the bright side. It is well to keep in mind how hard it has been in the past to arouse interest in Tennessee river development among the solons at Washington.

It was reported some months ago, when Theodore E. Burton was opposing the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals with all his might, that Mr. Burton has always opposed attempts to have the federal government open up the Tennessee river to full navigation that powerful Republican leader always declaring that there was not enough business to be done on the river to warrant large expenditures of government money upon it. It is up to the patriotic citizens of Alabama and of all sections for that matter to prove to the satisfaction of Mr. Burton and all other Washington solons, that there is enough potential business along the Tennessee river to warrant the expenditure of large sums to canalize the river, and also to develop the water power of the river.

MANY IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS MADE TO STATE CONSTITUTIONS

Important to large numbers of people was the action of the voters in the recent national election regarding proposed amendments to the constitutions of a large number of states. To the surprise of many Kentucky voted down a proposal to issue $75,000,000 worth of bonds for road building; Florida voted in an amendment against inheritance and income taxes; Mississippi defeated all the amendments offered, one would have provided for "abolishment of equality on assessments, paving the way for a graduated state income tax." In North Carolina present returns indicated that a bond issue for farm loans for soldiers amounting to $2,500,000 was approved, and a heavy vote was cast in favor of "homestead tax exemption." Most of the Southern states, except Kentucky voted in amendments providing for better roads. An Associated Press dispatch gives the following "amendment results" from middle west states:

Michigan rejected three constitutional amendments, the first abolishing all parochial schools, the second providing for a state income tax, and the last reapportioning the legislative districts.

Minnesota approved amendments to tax users of gasoline and defeated an amendment for state terminal elevators at Duluth and Minneapolis.

Missouri adopted a gasoline tax law and approved an amendment giving St. Louis the right to annex any part of St. Louis county, but defeated laws which would have provided for a workmen's compensation act and exempted religious and certain other property from taxation.

Texas overwhelmingly approved a constitutional amendment increasing the state tax rate two cents to provide additional funds for confederate veteran's pensions.

A $75,000,000 road bond issue was rejected in Kentucky. Fifty million of this issue would have gone for roads and the remainder for state institutions and to pay off a $6,000,000 debt incurred before the civil war.

Illinois voted its approval of a $100,000,000 bond issue for roads. Other questions approved included leases of the Illinois and Michigan canal to private interests and a law making branch banks illegal. A constitutional amendment which would have facilitated future amendment of the basic law apparently was lost.

Kansas rejected a plan to compensate war veterans other than those who participated in the world war; and also a constitutional amendment that would have changed the tax laws.

A move to increase taxation and enforce a reduction of governmental expenditures was defeated in North Dakota.

Voters of South Dakota refused to approve a plan to call a constitutional convention and also rejected a law concerning changes of primary elections.

Amendments to the Wisconsin constitution providing for reforestation and home rule for cities and towns of a certain size were adopted.

Nebraska defeated a move to hold direct primaries for congressional and state offices and to abolish party circles in such elections.

The action of Alabamians in voting in all seven proposed amendments to their state constitution is well known.

Such popularity must be deserved

To convert critics into enthusiasts, whether for a new school of music or for a cigarette, requires something more than luck. There's sound reason for every big swing in popular taste.

So, to account for Chesterfield's swift rise, look to the cigarette itself, its tobaccos, its blending—in short, its taste. This one thing alone—its decidedly better taste—explains why thousands of smokers are changing from other cigarettes to Chesterfield.

Arnett Is Big Gun Of Morgan Eleven To Be Pitted Against Independents Friday

Advance news of the powerful Morgan eleven that appears on Cooper-Wells field Friday afternoon against the Louisville-Nashville Y. M. C. A. aggregation points to a wealth of backfield material with the most important cog a certain Mr. Arnett, who trudges around doing chores at fullback. This terror to hostile lineemen is reported to be within the 100 pound circle and hits well over 300 when called upon to perform certain duties within the radius of guard and tackle. Mr. Arnett is not averse to end running antics and is reported to do the century in a fraction over ten seconds. Along with this demon of sterling oval totting qualities comes Tuck playing a halfback. The local boy displayed some of the very best sidestepping ability last year that has ever been seen on a local field. Tuck is no slouch at plunging the line and will prove exceedingly hard to stop. On the defense it has been said that he is one of the best men ever seen. On many occasions last season Tuck played a defensive end and woe to the backfield intruder that attempted his side of the line.

The Independents worked until the harvest moon had risen in all its glory on Wednesday night and they will enjoy no letup this afternoon and the coaching staff is determined to make this game a glorious memory in the minds of local fandom. Practically the entire line-up of the local team is in good shape and the few who are still out are rapidly recovering from the Normal batterings of last week. Captain Ellison, Gustin, McRee and Braswell will probably be the backfield choice while the line question is still problematical.

Officials for the game that is to be started promptly at 3:15 have not yet been named but only the best will be used. Advance sales of the tickets have been very good and it is hoped that one of the largest crowds in the history of local football will be on hand for the opening of the melee. The Independents will have to put up one of the heaviest guarantees of the year for the Morgan team and there is little chance that the club will have anything left over for the fund that is to pay for the outfitting of the men. The local Y. M. C. A. and the Louisville & Nashville shopmen have put up quite a bit toward the success of the team and it remains to be seen if the local public wants good football in this season and the coming years, or if they are content to let the schools, industries and the charitable organizations back them. Come out Friday and see one of the best games that has been played here in years it will be well worth the price of admission.

Wednesday afternoon the Decatur High team journeyed over to Cooper-Wells field and scrimmaged with the Albany High team. Both clubs are preparing for the end of the week games that stand before them.

Dear Sirs:
I mailed you the proof of death of D. P. Kennedy, insured for $37,000 today.

I attended the funeral services of Mr. Kennedy held in the Main Street Methodist Church here, and it was interesting and it would be interesting to any Reliance man, for the preacher, who conducted the services, is one of my $50,000 policy holders; the deceased's brother-in-law, who was there, is one of my $25,000 policy holders; two of the pall-bearers each have $35,000 with us, another pall-bearer has $10,000, another $5,000 and the lady, who sang the solo, has a son with a policy with us and another man in the congregation has $50,000 with us. Besides these, there were several who have from two to fifteen thousand with us. There was about $300,000 of Reliance insurance in the congregation of about one hundred and twenty-five people.

Yours very truly, P. O. Colson

New York Letter
By Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Somewhere, probably in this part of the country, there is a woman who will be made tremendously happy if she happens to read the White Plains Reporter advertising columns. "Information wanted concerning the mother of twins left on a local farm about 28 years ago," the ad reads, and back of it is the story of a poor unhappy woman 28 years ago who was convinced that she was unable to keep her babies from starving to death and so left them in front of a White Plain farmhouse, just a few miles out of New York City. The girls were adopted by wealthy families and are both happily married. They have been trying for two years to find their mother and have resorted to the advertisement page in their effort.

Probably one of the most versatile millionaire wives in Manhattan society is Mrs. Vincent Astor. Her interest in sociological matters and in conditions about her has been known by those who have followed her activities for some time. But that is not all. She can umpire a ball game: If anyone believes the lives of the pampered rich to be narrow and limited after that, they are sceptics indeed. Mrs. Astor, with Rear Admiral Sims and Lieutenant John Davis, is acting as umpires at the ball games in Newport between the summer residents and the city officials.

Girls may seem to lead luxurious lives these days but they have as much nerve and flair for adventure as ever they or their brothers had in days of any time. An airplane advertising company inserted an advertisement in local newspapers this week asking for girls to learn to operate airplanes at night for the purpose of writing electric adds over the city and more than one hundred applied before noon.

Smashing into people on subway trains as a cure for appendicitis was not convincing to a cold hearted judge in one of our municipal courts. Harry Hakian was arrested for his subway crashing and brought before Magistrate Brodsky. "Judge," he said, "I have been suffering from what my friends and myself believe to be appendicitis. They suggested that the heat engendered by the close packed humanity in the subway rush hour might be of benefit to me. Naturally I sought the greatest congestion in order to get the full benefit of the treatment. That full benefit included a $10 fine and a day in jail, with the co-operation of the Magistrate.

The floating bar is at last a reality. After two or three years of rumors it is with us—or at least far enough away from us to evade the prohibition laws. Fifteen miles off Fire Island, safely outside the legal limits of the U. S. A. is a large ship, and aboard the ship is a jazz orchestra, a well supplied bar, a dance floor, and heavily stocked refrigerators. And in spite of the high cost of reaching it and of spending the evening there after it is reached, its tables and its dance floor—and its bar space—are not empty these summer evenings.

MORROW-SHARPLEY

A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends of both the contracting parties, took place at Hartselle, Ala., at 7:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 12, when Miss Ruth Sharpley, of Hartselle, became the bride of Mr. Ernest Lane Morrow, of Decatur, Ala.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sharpley. For the occasion the library, living room and dining room were thrown together. In the library the decorations were white chrysanthemums and Shasta daisies. In the dining room roses used in profusion, and in the living room where the marriage vows were made, an improvised altar was arranged of two tall floor baskets holding specimen yellow chrysanthemums against a background of ferns and palms.

Preceding the ceremony, a beautiful musical program was rendered by three talented young matrons of Hartselle, Mrs. Chester L. Lee at the piano, and Mrs. Fred O. Sherrill and Mrs. Charles Y. Quinn in vocal solos. Mrs. Sherrill sang beautifully, "The Heart of Her," "I Love You Truly," Mrs. Quinn in lovely voice sang, "Because."

Then, as the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March were sounded, Rev. J. H. Hill, of the Christian Church, advanced to the altar place. The bride came down the stairway and through the library, on the arm of her sister, Miss Norma Sharpley, and at the same time the groom entered from the opposite door, accompanied by his brother, Mr. Oscar Morrow. They met at the altar, where Rev. Hill, with the impressive ring ceremony, pronounced them man and wife. Only the relatives of the contracting parties, and a few close personal friends witnessed the ceremony.

The bride is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, and because of the charm of her personality, is greatly loved. She was handsomely attired in her going-away costume, an ensemble costume in brown with fur trimmings, and harmonizing accessories, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Norma Sharpley was lovely in a gown of flowered georgette over brown satin, and carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Morrow, of Decatur, Ala., and is well known here and has a host of friends who congratulate him.

A large collection of beautiful and useful gifts were presented to this popular young couple, showing the love and esteem in which they are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow left immediately after the ceremony in their car for an overland trip, which will include several points of interest through the south, after which they will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Roper, at 208 East Vine St., Decatur, Ala.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. L. N. Whitman and little daughter, of Cullman, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hefflin and little son, of Danville, Mr. Maxwell Kent, of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Morrow, and Eugene Morrow, Miss Mildred Draper, Mrs. P. R. Morrison, Mrs. Mary Falkenberg, Miss Dora Wade and Mrs. Annie Lane Morris, of Decatur.

COTACQ LITERARY CLUB

The Cotacq Literary Club met on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Carl Patterson with a good attendance present. Roll call was answered with quotations from Arabian Nights.

Mrs. J. T. Nelson had charge of the program for the afternoon, the subject of which was "Ancient Arabia and the Soul of the Arabian Revolution," and it was carried out in an interesting manner.

At the business hour it was voted to give a Golden Rule Tea on December 10 at the home of Mrs. Melvin Hutson for the benefit of the Near East Relief Fund.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Patterson served a delicious salad course to the members of the club and one guest, Miss Wilbur Witt, who gave a delightful reading.

Miss Maud Holland, of Prospect, Tenn., after a visit to friends in Athens, is the guest of Mrs. L. C. Mayes.

Miss Vera Huie is visiting friends and relatives in Birmingham this week.

BIREAN CLUB

Mrs. Lester Sheffield and Mrs. J. D. Sharp were joint hostesses to the Birean Club on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Sheffield on Church street.

Mrs. J. D. Gibson, the vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. H. Ritter and the Bible lesson taken from the Fifteenth to the Twentieth Chapters of Revelations was ably led by Mrs. D. D. McGehee. A splendid paper on "Sarah, the Steadfast," was prepared and read by Mrs. B. E. Preuit.

During the social hour a lovely plate luncheon was served to those present. Mrs. Milton Harvey will be hostess at the meeting of the club.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Smith, of Vinemont celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on November 12 at their home when they had with them as many of their children and grandchildren as was possible including Mrs. Fred Heintz, of Princeton, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Smith and baby, of West Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Collins Borne, of Vinemont, and Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Smith and family, of Decatur.

PARTY FOR BRIDES.

Miss Amanda Pride will give a bridge party on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Valley Country club when her guests of honor will be Mrs. John C. Bragg, Mrs. H. E. Dryden, Jr., Mrs. Roy Wyatt and Mrs. H. L. Peterson.

QUILTING PARTY

Circle No. 3 of the W. M. U., of the Central Baptist church, enjoyed an all day quilting party on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ford Wear. The day was spent making a quilt for the Baptist's Orphans Home in Troy, and at noon a lovely lunch was participated in.

On Saturday afternoon at 3:30, the junior pupils of Mrs. Lableen Kinney will compliment the advanced pupils with a musicale at Mrs. Kinney's residence on Line street, Decatur. The following program will be given:

"Coquetry"—Miss Hilda Carpenter

At last she was moved from her silence, and her voice came dull and hard.

"I have learnt how little there is to choose between you," she said. "It was to have been expected. I might have known that two brothers could not have been so dissimilar in nature. Oh, I am learning a deal, and swiftly!"

"You are learning?" he echoed. "What are you learning?"

"Knowledge of the ways of men." His teeth gleamed in his wry smile.

"I hope the knowledge will bring you as much bitterness as the knowledge of women—of one woman—has brought me. To have believed me what you believed me—me whom you conceived yourself to love!"

"If I have a mercy to beg of you it is that you will not shame me with the reminder."

"Of your faithlessness?" he asked. "Of your disloyal readiness to believe the worst of me?"

"Of my ever having believed that I loved you. That is the thought that shames me, as nothing else in life could shame me, as not even the slave market and all the insult to which you have submitted me could shame me. You taunt me with my readiness to believe evil of you."

"I do more than taunt you with it," he broke in, his anger mounting under the pitiless lash of her scorn. "I lay to your charge the wasted years of my life, all the evil that has followed out of it, all that I have suffered, all that I have lost, all that I am become."

She looked up at him coldly, astonishingly mistress of herself. "You lay all this to my charge?" she asked him.

"I do." He was very vehement. "Had you not used me as you did, had you not lent a ready ear to lies, that whelp, my brother, would never have gone to such lengths, nor should I ever have afforded him the opportunity."

She shifted on the cushions of the divan and turned her shoulder to him.

"All this is very idle," she said coldly.

Yet perhaps because she felt that she had need to justify herself, she continued:

"If, after all, I was so ready to believe evil of you, it is that my instincts must have warned me of the evil that was ever in you. You have proved to the tonight that it was not you who murdered Peter; but to attain that proof you have done a deed that is even fouler and more shameful, a deed that reveals to the full the blackness of your heart. Have you not proved yourself a monster of vengeance and impiety?"

She rose and faced him again in her sudden passion.

"Then kill me," she answered fiercely, leaping up to confront and dare him."

"Are you not—you that were born a Cornish Christian gentleman—become a heathen and a robber, a renegade and a pirate? Have you not sacrificed your very God to your venal lust?"

He met her glance fully, never quailing before her denunciation, and when she had ended on that note of question he counter-questioned her.

"And your instincts had forewarned you of all this? God's life, woman! Can you invent no better tale than that?"

He turned aside as two slaves entered bearing an earthenware vessel.

"Here comes your supper. I hope your appetite is keener than your logic."

"They set the vessel, from which a savory smell proceeded, upon the little Moorish table by the divan. On the ground beside it they placed a broad dish of baked earth in which there were a couple of loaves and a red, short-necked amphora of water with a drinking-cup placed over the mouth of it to act as a stopper."

They salaamed profoundly and padded softly out again.

"Sup," he bade her shortly. "I want no supper," she replied, her manner sullen.

His cold eye played over her. "Henceforth, girl, you will consider not what you want, but what I bid you do. I bid you eat; about it, therefore."

"I will not."

"Will not?" he echoed slowly. "Is that a speech from slave to master? Eat, I say."

"I cannot! I cannot!" she protested.

"A slave may not live who can not do her master's bidding."

"Then—kill me," she answered fiercely, leaping up to confront and dare him. "Kill me. You are used to killing, and for that at least I should be grateful."

"I will kill you if I please," said he in level, icy tones. "But not to please you. You don't yet understand. You are my slave, my thing, my property, and I will not suffer you to be damaged save at my own good pleasure. Therefore, eat, or my Nubians shall whip you to quicken appetite."

For a moment she stood defiant before him, white and resolute. Then quite suddenly, as if her will was being bent and crumpled under the insistent pressure of his own, she drooped and sank down again to the divan. Slowly, reluctantly she drew the dish nearer. Watching her, he laughed quite silently.

She paused, appearing to seek for something. Failing to find it, she looked up at him again, between scorn and intercession.

"Am I to tear the meat with my fingers?" she demanded.

His eyes gleamed with understanding, or at least with suspicion. But he answered her quite calmly:

"It is against the Prophet's law to defile meat or bread by the contact of a knife. You must use the hands that God has given you."

"Do you mock me with the Prophet and his laws? What are the Prophet's laws to me? If eat I must, at least I will not eat like a heathen dog, but in Christian fashion."

To indulge her, as it seemed, he slowly drew the richly hilted dagger from his girdle.

"Let that serve you, then," he said; and carelessly tossed it down beside her.

With a quick indrawn breath she pounced upon it.

"At last," she said, "you give me something for which I can be grateful to you." And on the words she laid the point of it against her breast.

Like lightning he had dropped to one knee, and his hand had closed about her wrist with such a grip that her arm felt limp and powerless. He was smiling into her eyes, his swarthy face close to her own.

"Did you indeed suppose I trusted you? Did you really think me deceived by your sudden pretense of yielding? When will you learn that I am not a fool? I did it—but to test your spirit."

"Then now you know its temper," she replied. "You know my intention."

"Forewarned, forearmed," said he.

She looked at him, with something that would have been mockery but for the contempt that colored it too deeply.

"Is it so difficult a thing," she asked, "to snap the thread of life? Are there no ways of dying save by the knife? You boast yourself my master; that I am your slave; that having bought me in the market place I belong to you body and soul. How idle is that boast. My body you may bind and confine; but my soul—Be very sure that you shall be cheated of your bargain. You boast yourself lord of life and death. A lie! Death is all that you can command."

Quick steps came pattering up the stairs, and before he could answer her, before he had thought of words in which to do so, all confronted him with the astonishing announcement that there was a woman below asking urgently to speak with him.

"A woman?" he questioned, frowning. "A Nasran woman, do you mean?"

"No, my lord, a Moslem," was the still more surprising information.

"A Moslem woman, here? Impossible!"

But even as he spoke a dark figure glided like a shadow across the threshold on to the terrace. She was in black from head to foot, including the veil that shrouded her, a veil of the proportions of a mantle, serving to dissemble her very shape.

All swung upon her in a rage.

"Did I not bid thee wait below, thou daughter of shame?" he stormed. "She has followed me up, my lord, to thrust herself in here upon you. Shall I drive her forth?"

"Let her be," said Sakr-el-Bahr. And he waved all away. "Leave us."

Something about that black immovable figure arrested his attention and fired his suspicions. Unaccountably almost it brought to his mind the thought of Ayoub-el-Samin and the bidding there had been for Rosamund in the sok.

Wheat
the
of Life

You can get the most food value out of wheat by eating bakings that are made from good plain flour. A dependable baking powder must be employed or you do not get the full nutritious value of the wheat—nor will your bakings be as palatable and easily digested.

The same results cannot be had if you use Self Rising Flours, which are improperly packed in porous sacks or bags, thus allowing absorption of moisture from the air. Food authorities and physicians agree that bakings that do not raise properly are bad for health. Such foods are hard to digest and in time cause stomach trouble.

Mothers who are interested in the proper growth and health of their children (and all mothers are) should never use anything but a good brand of plain flour and a time-tested leavener such as Calumet—the economy Baking Powder.

Calumet has more than the ordinary leavening strength. It raises every baking to its height of nutritious value. It is pure and dependable—do not look for a substitute—there is none.

Use Calumet and be positive of wholesome nutritious and economical foods.

MISS GRICE WEDS MR. HARGROVE IN HARTSELLE

One of the prettiest fall weddings in Hartselle was that of Sunday morning when Miss Willie Maud Grice became the bride of E. E. Hargrove of Decatur, Alabama, the nuptials being solemnized at the home of the bride.

Long before the appointed hour of 10 o'clock the house was filled with friends and acquaintances of the popular bride and groom. A color note of green and white was carried out in the decorations. The altar was banked with palms and ferns, while tall flower baskets of white and yellow chrysanthemums were placed very effectively around the altar.

Preceding the entrance of the wedding party, Miss Lois Nelson at the piano played appropriate selections. Mrs. Wray Barclift sang, "I Love You Truly," and also Mr. Hal Barclift sang, "O Promise Me."

At the signal from the notes of the wedding march, the bridal party entered. First came the groom, Mr. Warren Grice, and the bridesmaid Miss Mateline Grice, only sister of the bride, and took their places, Miss Grice was lovely in a blue crepe black satin, made with low cut bodice and full skirt with a cluster of roses in fasted shades on the left shoulder. Her flowers were white chrysanthemums caught with tulle.

The bride entered with the maid of honor, Miss Gladys Stewart, Miss Stewart was handsome in a creation of golden brown crepe back satin beaded in gold crystals. She carried a graceful bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums caught with white tulle. The bride and her maid of honor were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. R. H. McGuire. They were joined in marriage by Rev. R. W. Anderson pastor of the First Methodist church the ring ceremony being used.

The bride was radiantly lovely in gown of African brown canton crepe with which she wore a long cloth coat trimmed with mole skin collar and cuffs the same of her dress and a hat of brown velvet. Her shoes were of the same shade of brown. Her flowers were a shower of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Amid a shower of rice, confetti and best wishes, Mr. Hargrove and his bride left for a wedding journey which will be spent in New Orleans. On their return they will make their home in Decatur.

Mrs. Hargrove, as Miss Willie Maud

Grice was one of Hartselle's most beautiful women, as well as being extremely popular with all who knew her. She was loved for her wining ways and will be sadly missed in Hartselle where she has lived since childhood.

Mr. Hargrove is one of Decatur's young business men.
